Addison Advertiser Invites Women to See "Star in My Kitchen"

Cooking School in motion picture form will provide instruction and entertainment—There will be door prizes each afternoon — Free admission to all in Avon Theatre May 23, 24 and 25.

The Addison Advertiser has scored again!

This newspaper has been successful in securing the new Motion Picture Cooking School, "Star in My Kitchen", which will be presented at the Avon Theatre on May 23, 24 and 25.

Mark the days on your calendar because every woman—and man—in the community is hereby extended a cordial invitation to see, absolutely free, this fascinating picture which weaves helpful, intelligent lessons on cooking and home-making into a humorous and romantic plot.

The Motion Picture Cooking School is a brand new idea. First conceived last year, it has met with acclaim from women throughout the country, who like the happy combination of sparkling entertainment and close-up cooking instruction. Seats in the back row are as good as those in the front row—the motion picture permits everyone to hear and see every trick in frosting a cake, making a pie or cooking bananas.

"Star in My Kitchen" was produced in Hollywood, and the audience will recognize many of the rising young actors and actresses who take part in it. Young women and old will appreciate the humanness of the romantic story, in which home problems are approached from an entirely new angle.

The Motion Picture Cooking School has graduated beyond the demonstration course in the wide variety of household equipment assembled in clear view of the audience. All of the practical equipment is seen in active use, and because "seeing is believing", the audience will soon learn that pies and cakes and salads can make them "stars in their kitchens".

Experienced housekeepers will thrill to the adventures of the young Dedee Abot, who suddenly find herself with a large home to manage and several mouths to feed—as well as a handsome young movie actor to impress.

What happens when she tries to make a fluffy lemon meringue pie or a marshmallow chocolate cake? What happens when the "man of the hour" drops in for dinner?

To unravel the mystery in advance would be to rob this clever tale of its novel approach. However, the audience is due to share in a rollicking good story and to learn much about home-making at the same time.

Every listener will find a harvest of practical ideas among the suggestions for more efficient home-making, covering such daily problems as laundry, refrigeration, up-to-date entertaining, beauty secrets, news of modernized home equipment and tips on making these mechanical servants yield the highest degree of usefulness.

It will be a real cooking class, just as though the model kitchens were right on the stage, and all of the popular features of the old-type cooking school are retained: free recipe sheets, the atmosphere of congenial informality, the wise counsel, the hints on clever short-cuts, and the distribution of daily gifts and real surprises.

Accept the invitation of the Addison Advertiser and plan to join your neighbors in the Avon on May 23, 24 and 25

Addison Grange Supper Tonight

The scholarship fund of the Grange will be enriched from the proceeds of the supper Thursday night, sponsored co-jointly with the Addison Cooperative G. L. F. Service. The proceeds of the supper will be used to help finance Grange young people through college or finishing school. This sum will mark the creation of a fund from which borrowings may be made. Low rates of interest are charged after the student has completed his or her education during their earning days. No interest is charged during undergraduate days. This sum will insure many receiving higher educations than would other wise be able to secure training.

Most of the food is beig donated for this Thursday night supper to cut the costs of the supper and to increase the returns.

ELECTED PRESIDENT

At a recent annual meeting of the Steuben County Embalmers and Undertakers Association held at the Hotel Wagner, Bath, Jeffrey Smith of Woodhull was elected president of the association.

Other officers elected were: Joseph Kileen, Hornell, vice president; secretary, Donald Allen; treasurer, T. L. Waldo, Bath; County director, S. John Stover, Corning; state director, Irene S. Philips, Corning.

Plans Complete For Bath Deanery Meet Sunday

The annual meeting of the Bath Episcopal Deanery will be held in Addison Sunday, May 1 at 4:30 o'clock in the afternoon. This is the first Sunday Deanery meeting and is being tried as an experiment in Addison. The Rev. Donald Ellwood, Montour Falls, Dean, will preside. The Rev. Ellwood succeeded the Rev. Thomas A. Withey, former vicar of the Chapel of the Redeemer.

The churches which will be represented at this deanery meeting are; Addison, Bath, Bradford, Canisteo, Catharine, Corning, Hammondsport, Hornell, Montour Falls, Savona and Watkins Glen.

There will be two meetings, the one for the women in the Guild Hall and for the men in the Methodist Church parlors. Women of the Auxiliary of the Addison Church will serve a supper to the visiting guests in the guild hall at 6:30 o'clock.

Prominent lay speakers will be on the afternoon and evening programs, including Dr. O'Dell of Hobart and Dr. Robert A. Polson of Cornell University. The public is invited to the meetings.

T. J. Train of Binghamton spent the week-end at his home here.

AHS Band Off to Cuba Contest

The Addison High School band under the direction of Glenn L. Sprague, will leave today for Cuba where they will be in the sectional contest for high school bands of the southern New York section. The local unit is scheduled to play at 2 o'clock. Many parents and friends will accompany the musicians to the contest. A school bus has been engaged to take many of the players.

Supervisor and Mrs. Newcomb Feted

A variety shower was held Saturday evening, at Rathbone Grange Hall honoring Mr. and Mrs. William Newcomb who were recently married. Many useful gifts were presented them. Supper was served to seventy-five guests. The evening was spent with cards and dancing. Those who attended from Cameron Mills were, Mr. and Mrs. Leland Kibbe and son, Jimmie, Mrs. Diana Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Horey and son, John, Milo Saxton and family, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Bates, Mr. and Mrs .Leigh Barker and Mr. and Mrs. Ray Risley.

American Hotel Personnel Changed by Mr. Sisto

George Eldridge is the new clerk in the American House, Addison, having been engaged by owner Angelo Sisto. Charles Rabino will remain in the tap room and he will be assisted by Tony Irraggi. Mr. and Mrs. Sisto plan to reopen their home in South Street about May 5 and move from the hotel.

Presbyterian Church Has New Chancel Lights

The Presbyterian congregation is rejoicing in a new lighting of the chancel which has recently been installed.

The old open type of individual lights has been discontinued, a long wooden panel matching the woodwork of the organ has been built across the organ front and five sixty watt, white Lumiline lamps have been attached behind this panel. This removes all glare from the people's eyes, gives ample light for the organist and choir and produces a soft golden glow upon the organ panels.

This long-desired improvement has been made possible through the generosity of Justice Edwin C. Smith. The gift of lumber was made by C. A. Brewster and the electric fixtures and skilled installation was furnished by the Addison Electric Store.

BIRTHDAY PARTY

Mr. and Mrs. Matthew Stewart entertained a number of friends Wednesday evening in celebration of the birthday anniversary of their daughter Wanda.

Dancing and games were enjoyed and refreshments served. About sixty friends attended.

Rare Trillium Again Comes Into Bloom

The yellow trillium is now in bloom in the yard of the editor of this paper. The yellow trillium is the rarest of all varieties of this plant and it is believed no other specimen is growing in a dooryard anywhere in this vicinity. The original bulb was obtained deep in a ravine in a large tract of woods, several years ago.

Mr. or Mrs. Miller will gladly show this rare plant to anyone desiring to see it during the next few days while it remains in bloom.

Mrs. Forrest Perry Wins Vacuum Cleaner

Mrs. Forrest Perry, South Street, is the winner of a Westinghouse electric vacuum sweeper by virtue of being a winner in a recent contest conducted by the Crisco Company. She wrote a short sentence on "Why I like Crisco." Last Saturday she received notice that she was one of the winners in this national contest and in addition announcement was made via radio to all the country. She is receiving the congratulations of her many friends.

Danger—Lawmakers At Work

BISMARCK, N. D. (IPS)—You had better stop and think before you go to sleep in the State of North Dakota, for you can be arrested for it.

The 1929 Legislature approved a law on hotel inspection. A slip in punctuation made it read:

"No hotel, restaurant, dining room or kitchen shall be used as a sleeping or dressing room by an employee or other persons."

Eliminate the comma after the word "hotel" and the section makes some sense. However, judges say it would take a legislative amendment to get rid of that comma.

GARDNER—WINTERS

Miss Dorothy Winters, Corning, became the bride of Fay Gardner, Rathbone, in a ceremony performed Sunday night in the Methodist parsonage. The wedding ceremony was performed by the Rev. Garland G. Lacey, pastor of the church at 7 o'clock Sunday, April 24, 1938. They were attended by Miss Geraldine Gardner and Carlton Farrand.

HEADS COMMITTEE

Mrs. Guy Mayer heads the committee in charge of the spring rummage sale conducted by the ladies of the Church of the Redeemer Saturday, throughout the day and evening.

Rebekah Fair Nets $190 for Two Days

The indoor fair and supper held by the Rebekahs last Thursday and Friday netted $190 according to members of the committee. This is the largest sum raised by any local venture in several months. There was a large committee of the women under the direction of Mrs. Edgar Dann as general chairman. The women were assisted by members of the Odd Fellows. Long preparation was made for the affair and the division of work before and after the affair is a tribute to the committee members.

Water Consumers Asked to Cooperate In Company Program

Hydrant flushing will continue today, Thursday and Friday in the village of Addison. Today pressure will be reduced and work started on hydrants between the Canisteo River and Tuscarora Creek. The work will begin at 1:30 o'clock. Consumers are asked to draw water for their needs until the work is completed at 5:30.

Friday the cleaning will be on hydrants south of Tuscarora Creek.

Bishop Ferris Confirms Seven In Redeemer

Seven were confirmed in the Addison Episcopal Church Sunday by the Rt. Rev. David Lincoln Ferris, D. D. LL. D. Bishop of Rochester. The Rt. Rev. Bishop was accompanied here by Mrs. Ferris and the Rev. Harry Longley of Christ Church, Corning.

Those who were confirmed were; Miss Betty Sanford, Richard Gerry, Thomas and Malcolm Moshier, Helen Auringer, Patricia O'Reilly and Shirley Ann Frost.

An informal reception was held for the visiting clergymen and his wife in the Guild Hall after the confirmation services. A supper was served by the women of the Auxiliary of the local church.

MRS. HAND IMPROVING

The condition of Mrs. Ralph Hand who submitted to a major operation in Corning Hospital two weeks ago and a second one a few days later is reported as improved.

Dairy League Awards Prizes To Contestants

Winners in the Dairymen's League essay contest on cooperative marketing held in this district have just been announced by the League director. Four cash awards were offered for the best essays on the subject, "Working for the Cost of Production for Milk". The awards just announced are as follows: First prize, Howard Mason, Woodhull High School; second prize, Elton Kilmer, Woodhull High School; third prize, Bill Colburn, Addison High School; fourth prize, Joe Coleman, Addison High School; honorable mention, Kenneth Treat, Troupsburg High School.

Prizes were offered by Dairymen's League Locals for the best essays written in the schools in their particular areas. The winning essays were then submitted in a district contest, four additional awards being offered for those selected as "Grand Champions".

The essay contest on cooperative marketing was suggested by President Fred H. Sexauer, who believes that the younger people in our schools need a thorough education along marketing lines.

Winners in the contests are being invited to read their essays at dairy meetings in the area.

The judges stated that the essays were excellent and that it was difficult to select the winners.

The judges for this district were: Hon. William Stuart, Canisteo; Hon. Guy Cheney, Corning, and Henry Brush, Superintendent of Schools, Arkport, N. Y.

GILLET CLUB

A short picnic supper was served at the monthly meeting of the Gillet Club held Tuesday evening in the Presbyterian Church parlors. Mrs. Wendell Chappelle presided at a short business meeting. Mrs. Emory Rusby and Mrs. Percy Smith were appointed the food committee for the May meeting.

The following were present; The Rev. John V. Axtell, Mr. and Mrs. John Davis, Mr. and Mrs. Percy Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Salerno, Mr. and Mrs. Milton Crane, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Armstrong Dr. and Mrs. Stuart Bean, Mr. and Mrs. Jay Mose, Mr. and Mrs. Irving Gladstone, Mrs. Wendelle Chappelle and Mrs. Robert Magoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis E. Handy and niece Miss Gayle Mapes and guests, spent the week-end at the Handy Cottage on Keuka Lake .

Hi-Lights and Shadows of the Week's News

A crowd of some two or three thousand farmers met in Macomb Ill. this week to protest against the government corn quotas of the A. A. A. Stirred by the announcement of their acreage allotment farmers from all over the mid west are said to have sent telegrams and letters of protest to the meeting, voicing their disapproval of regimentation of agriculture.

Jay Mose Carves Queen Mary Model

Jay Mose has a replica of the S. S. Queen Mary on exhibition in the Crane Insurance Company window. Jay has always had a reputation locally as a model builder and his present endeavor far exceeds anything in the ship building line he has attempted. He won a prize with his model of the French Line ship Normandie.

The present model is 31 and one-half inches long and four inches wide and five and one-half inches high. The ship is modeled on a 1/32 scale. It is carved from one piece of balsa wood and was done with a jack knive and razor blade in 75 hours.

There are approximately 1,000 hand drilled port holes in the model ship. This present ship is complete with miniature tennis courts and nets.

The original ship is 1,018 feet long and 180 feet high from the keel to the topmost deck and with mast and all is 265 feet high, which is equivalent to a 25 story building.

The original is 118 feet wide and has 12 decks from keel to bridge. Pictures and plans of the original ship are on display with the model.

James Barkalow Joins Sanford In Business

James Barkalow, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Barkalow has joined with John Sanford in the operation of an electrical service and sales company in Addison. They will make their headquarters in the Hubbs Electric Store, Main Street.

Mr. Sanford has been operating the business. Mr. Barkalow comes here after spending some time with the New York State Gas and Electric Company, doing service work on refrigerators and ranges in Corning and vicinity.

Before that time he was in the Mechanics Institute in Rochester where he completed a three year course in electrical engineering. During his undergraduate days he worked on wiring layouts, studied the theory and practice on motors and generators and specialized on home and industrial refrigeration and air conditioning. He also spent some of his time with the factory representative of one of the larger refrigerator companies setting up and dismantling machines of various types.

The new company will specialize in all sorts of repairs on electrical appliances. In addition they will do house wiring or rewiring old homes and houses.

BIRTH OF DAUGHTER

Large Crowd at Addison Scout Father and Son Banquet

The Rev. Ward Flaxington of Hornell guest speaker—Tells boys to shoulder their share of the load—Advises not to "be yellow as scouts, in school or at home".

One hundred seven boys and older boys attended the father and son banquet sponsored Monday evening by the Addison Ad Club for Addison Troop No. 27. The principal address of the evening was given by the Rev. Ward Flaxington, pastor of Westminster Presbyterian Church in Hornell. The dinner was served by the ladies of the Methodist Church in their diningroom. Singing was led by the Rev. John V. Axtell, Miss Janet Taylor playing the piano.

Dr. M. F. Whitmore, chairman of the troop committee, introduced Charles L. Crane as toastmaster. Charles Salerno spoke briefly on the financial drive of the troop being held this week and urged the solicitors be received graciously whether or not those approached cared to give to the movement. William Miller, scout leader of Troop 27 called the roll of the Addison scouts who responded as follows: Bernard Wilson and Kenneth McCaig, assistant scoutmasters. John Orr, junior assistant scoutmaster. Richard Gladstone and Walter Perkins, first class scouts. Junior Reynolds, Matthew Whitmore, Charles Whitmore and Ed Russ, second class scouts. Wesley Babcock, Bernard Rice, Charles Wilson, Charles Levi and Richard Casson, tenderfoot scouts. Two members of the troop were not in attendance.

Clyde Shults, director of scouting, of Hornell took charge of the introduction of other out-of-town guests. He presented Kenneth Plants of Hornell and "Bob" Mason of Almond, both of whom spoke briefly. Also John Bennett of Hornell, chairman of the camp committee who told something about the county summer camp at Waneta Lake. John Orr played a clarinet solo accompanied by Miss Taylor, the number being so warmly greeted they responded with an encore. The main speaker of the evening was also introduced by Mr. Shults.

Mr. Flaxington said in introduction that he would like to pin a flock of roses on the Ad Club for sponsoring scouting. "Organizations like the Lions, the Rotary and the Ad Club are called 'service clubs', and I think they generally live up to the name," he said. "For usually they do render service of one kind or another in the communities in which they are. Services which would be accomplished by no other means. But I defy anyone to find anything better for a service club to sponsor than boy scouting.

In these days we are in there are so many temptations on every hand it is harder to be a clean youngster today than when I was a boy. That's why this building is standing here—for it has a purpose in the community to build up. What it stands for, what every church stands for, is worthy of the best we have. I did not come up here to help out in your financial drive, but let me say in passing that scouting is an excellent example of what is a good investment. In these days we are cursed by so many youths in crime. Only tonight I read of some young men who were electrocuted for murder. There are a tremendous amount of youngsters who get into trouble, and for every boy who gets tangled up with the law so we learn about him there are probably scores who get mixed in minor infractions of the law and gradually drift into lives of crime which in time leads them down the trail until some of them become our Dillingers.

"Scouting is one of the lifting elements we have today that heads boys towards better citizenship. And

Those present included the Scout leaders, Mrs. Armstrong and Mrs. Bernard Wilson and committee members, Mrs. Irving R. Gladstone Mrs. Dixon Curtis, Mrs. Peter Laffkas, Mrs. Matthew Whitmore and the hostess, Mrs. Hill.

Prize Speaking In AHS May 2

The prize speaking contest in the Addison High School will be held Monday, May 9 instead of Tuesday, May 3, as previously announced. The change was made by Mrs. Alice Breese, director of the work, owing to the large number of annual school meetings being held in the vicinity on the night of May 3.

With this change in mind, the judge will be a member of the faculty of Ithaca College of Dramatic Art.

There are ten participants in the local contest, five boys and five girls. Practice sessions are being held nightly in the school with various speakers. Some of the recitations will be humorous and others will be historical and some of the better known classical orations.

The girl and the boy winner of the local contest will be sent to the county prize speaking contest to carry the honors for the Addison High School.

HOME BUREAU MEETINGS

May 2—Meeting of western district of State Federation of Home Bureaus at the Congregational Church in Canandaigua at 10 o'clock.,

SELF CONVINCED

Day by day and month by month the thought has become general throughout the country that in his own mind the President is convinced that he cannot be wrong. For in word, deed and action over the period of his administration Mr. Roosevelt has shown that whatever the turn of events, he is ready to take credit for all success and find a ready-made whipping-boy for every failure.

And the great danger to the country lies in the fact that his conviction of personal invulnerability is so fixed, he believes no view-point, save his own, is worth considering. It is shown by his ready acceptance of suggestions from one class of associates—the seven dwarf variety exemplified by the Cohen, Cocoran crowd—and his constant spurning of advice from such level-headed members of his own party as Garner and Bernard Barauch. In other words, as has been frequently said, he believes what he likes to believe and turns aside from the facts he does not like to believe.

A recent case in point is that of the Congressional controversy over the undistributed tax law revision. Every economist of consequence in the land has known this measure held potential dangers, and that general opinion was justified by our nose-dive during the Roosevelt depression. Yet this measure having been a Roosevelt pet, devised as part of his "soak the rich plan" to win votes from the poor, he has never been willing to admit it has been a dangerous experiment for the country. The fact that this law dissipated corporation earnings and prevented establishment of reserves to cope with depressions, was no argument to the President. Compared with the thought he had advanced it as a personal brain-child. Hence when Senator Harrison prepared a tax bill which wiped the slate of this obnoxious measure the President immediately sprang to its defense and called upon the joint committee of the House and Senate to save his pet by adopting the House measure. The resultant compromise was one which practically sheared the excess profits tax of its harmful features, yet avoiding the extreme motion of wiping out this tax in full.

Thus Congress has been able to tell the President that his face has been saved with the people by retention of this tax—in principle. One writer has compared this gesture on the part of Congress to parents who are greatly embarrassed when their infant son throws a tantrum before company. To quiet the child they give him a stick of candy to appease his wounded feelings, thus quieting the house.

Mr. Roosevelt has his stick of candy handed him by a Congress which is willing he should preserve that much self-righteousness over the turn events took. The President is doubtless, muttering to himself in echo of the constant praise of the seven dwarfs, "I still must be right for Congress has given in to me again". The country in general is sure that it was a totally hollow victory which the Chief Executive wrung from Congress. Yet what of the effect upon business?

Well business has received a little encouragement from the fact Congress has been willing to hold the President to a compromise, hard on the heels of upsetting his self-respect with the government reorganization slap in the fact. Business feels that Congress itself is not in favor of abolishment of the profit system. But business also feels that as long as Mr. Roosevelt is in the White House controlling such anti-business bodies as the National Labor Relations Board, there will be no encouragement to forge ahead and expand. Business cannot forget that the U. S. debt is 38 billion dollars and a spendthrift President is again advocating the throwing of new billions to the seven winds in an attempt to cure a new depression of his own making.

Business knows that in his own mind the President is still invulnerable, that he has more than two years to serve and the relief load is still practically as great as ever. While Congress was saving the President's face, it was also warning business that not too much help can be expected as long as Mr. Roosevelt controls patronage and favors for the majority party. And that is the discouraging side of the matter.

THE TVA INVESTIGATION

The joint House-Senate investigation of the Tennessee Valley Authority, will be a real job.

Growing public interest in the tangled affairs of the Authority made this investigation inescapable. Charges and countercharges, plots and counterplots, seemingly unbridgeable differences between the directors, accusations of waste and irregularity —such things as these have characterized the TVA's stormy history. Matters finally reached the point where an investigation was essential not only to protect the vast public interest in the TVA, but in justice to its directors and sponsors. If the TVA has been managed honestly and efficiently, that should be proven beyond question—if the opposite is the case, quick and drastic remedial action should be taken by Congress.

Above all, this should be a non-political, non-partisan investigation. It should be neither a whitewash nor a muckracking expedition. It should favor neither the proponents nor the opponents of the TVA. It should be thorough, sweeping and dispassionate.

Is it true or is it not true that the TVA has pursued ruthless and rapacious tactics in dealing with private business in the Southwest? Is it true or is it not true that millions in tax money have been spent for useless purposes? Is it true or is it not true that TVA management has at times been swayed by purely political considerations? Is it true or not true that personal enmities and jealousies among TVA directors have made efficient, business-like operation impossible? It is such questions as these that the public wants answered—completely, fairly and finally.

WHY?

When a prominent Democrat advocated before the state constitutional convention that a law be promulgated to launch the state into lotteries to raise money for relief purposes, he insulted the intelligence of both the minds of that body and the citizens of the entire state, as well.

Too many people are led into believing that lotteries are a fine method of raising money without cost. Because someone gets a large sum by presentation of an inexpensive ticket they jump to the false conclusion the money sprang from the ground or grew on trees. They never take the time to consider that the large bulk of money raised in lotteries actually comes from the pockets of the poor. That it is wrung from those who can least afford to part with it on the almost universally false hope of getting a lot of something for practically nothing. For be not deceived, every person who wins a thousand dollars in a lottery is matched by other millions who spent their money for tickets and reaped only disappointment.

If the money which goes into great lotteries came only out of the pockets of the rich, there would be little to worry about. On the contrary educating the poor to throw their bread money after such will-o'-the-wisps is like teaching children to smoke loco-weed. It is bad enough for honest citizens to cope with the forces of recognized outlaws who prey upon the poor public selling baseball pool tickets and sweepstakes, without the state government itself educating the people to thus waste their money and destroy their conscience.

One of the bad features of this widespread growth of the game of Bingo, has been that it developed to an alarming extent the tendency of young people to engage in gambling. It has been said that there would be little trouble stopping these Bingo games if it were not for the influence of some church groups in favor of it. That when an attempt is made to break up the Bingo game these church groups raise their cries to high Heaven in condemnation of this attempt to stop their work to raise money—for righteous causes.

Of a truth the churches which advocate and run Bingo games are fortunately few and far between. Yet they are not few enough or scarce enough. Any church which must stoop to promulgation of games of chance like Bingo in order to raise funds for its own existence, would seem to lack a proper reason for that existence.

JOB KILLER!

The Number 1 job killer!

That is the way the Businessmen's Tax Advisory Committee characterizes the Federal Tax on Capital Gains.

The reason for that is clear. Jobs depend on investment. And the capital gains levy, because it prevents putting savings to work, by exacting excessive tax penalties from those who are fortunate enough to make a profit on a business or investment venture, retards and stops investments —the source of all jobs and all productive wealth.

This organization also points out a fact that is startling and is not widely known. According to U. S. Treasury data for the year 1935, the capital gains levy is a "soak the little fellow" tax. In that typical year, aggregate capital gains were much larger in the lower income than in the higher income brackets. And the ratio of capital loss (for which little credit is given in making tax returns) to capital gains was highest in the lower income brackets. It's the "little man" who gets stuck hardest!

Businessmen aren't the only ones who are fighting the capital gains measure. An army of distinguished economists are fighting it. Publicists by the score are describing its dangers. Thus, Mark Sullivan recently wrote: "If America is to be kept a going concern, the capital gains tax must be repealed or greatly modified". That is a strong statement—but no stronger than the subject justifies. What sane man will take a chance on financing a new endeavor, whether it be a grocery store or a steel mill—knowing that if he loses his investment, he must bear the entire loss—but that if he makes a profit, a large part of it will be taken from him by this tax?

All the evidence can be summed up in one sentence: We must change the capital gains tax if we are to encourage recovery and progress in this country.

The British-Italian Agreement

By DOROTHY THOMPSON

ONLY time will tell whether the British-Italian agreement, signed on April 15 in Rome, will actually contribute to the pacification of Europe, and, if so, whether the terms will permit democratic government to live. It may temporarily do the first. That, indeed, seems very likely. War is probably farther off than it was a few weeks ago. And that, of course, is a great deal. On the other hand, we have got to wait and see whether this agreement will serve to weaken the Rome-Berlin axis or whether it will serve to extend it; we shall not have any real light on what is happening until we know what passes between Mussolini and Hitler in conversations soon to take place in Rome; until we see what happens to the French-Soviet pact; until we see what terms Britain offers Germany in an attempt at conciliation there.

At first sight England is clearly following a variation of her traditional policy of never having two potential enemies on the Continent of Europe at the same time, of treating the fait accompli realistically, and of attempting to divide power which, when combined, might mean the control of the Continent.

And Mussolini is also acting realistically. He has been anxious to further his own interests by challenging Britain, but he has not been anxious to further the German interests. He played with Germany in order to force the hand of England, and he has now got Germany and a militant Pan-Germanism on the Brenner Pass. Therefore, unless he wishes to become a satellite of Germany rather than a partner, he needs an ally.

And now what have you got?

In the last two years Mussolini has risked starting two wars in Europe. According to this agreement, he has definitely won the Ethiopian war. He had, to be sure, won it already; the agreement is merely a recognition of an accomplished fact.

But the fact that the Ethiopians still had legal claims may have encouraged them to continue the opposition which has been going on to this day, and the fact that Mussolini has no money with which to exploit Ethiopia has made the victory a mockery except for prestige.

It remains to be seen whether the Anglo-Italian treaty will be accompanied by a loan to Italy or with other aid in exploiting East Africa, and whether it will really make it easier for Mussolini to deal with the Ethiopian tribes. If all he gets is the recognition of Ethiopia, then the agreement is tantamount to killing a dead horse.

In Spain Mussolini is giving up a tremendous strategical advantage if the agreement means exactly what it says. Germany and Italy now control every naval air base in Majorca, Spanish Morocco and all over Insurgent Spain—bases which could terribly harass the British, menace the French, and which have cost Mussolini thousands of lives and millions of dollars. Even if we assume that he has been paid or partly paid in Spanish raw materials, he will be no better off than when he went in, and the probability is that he will be very much in the hole.

Of course, the agreement about non-intervention remains the cruel and immoral joke that it has been from the beginning.

The Italian Foreign Minister "confirms that his government adheres to the British formula for the proportional withdrawal of volunteers from Spain . . . at the time and under the conditions laid down by the Non-Intervention Committee."

In view of past history, this simply means that Italy agrees not to withdraw from Spain until Franco has won the war, and England agrees to continue to call active assistance for Franco non-intervention.

But Mussolini agrees that the moment the war is over all Italian volunteers shall immediately leave, and all Italian war material be immediately removed, and all territorial, political, and economic advantages renounced.

So we are asked to believe that Mussolini has been fighting this whole war out of purely altruistic motives, or, we can draw the conclusion that Britain also wants a Franco victory and that England and Italy together will share the spoils.

But Germany is also in Spain. So now England must try to negotiate an agreement with Hitler that he should also get out of Spain. But why should Hitler do so, except for a very handsome quid pro quo? Who is going to throw him out? England, France, and Italy together? Italy has reaffirmed the Berlin-Rome axis. If Franco wins the war, Spain will be a sovereign power and the dictator will be Franco. Suppose General Franco, who will have conquered Spain with foreign troops, finds that he cannot hold it without their continued presence? Suppose he finds it useful to have German aid to extend and enlarge a Spanish empire in Morocco?

Is there anything to prevent Franco from making arrangements with either Hitler or Mussolini? From asking Hitler to build him ports and give him arms in exchange for raw materials? At Würzburg a few months ago Hitler admitted that he was in Spain for raw materials.

It seems to me that Hitler is in an extremely good position. He will certainly ask a price for leaving Spain, and that price will be a free hand in Central Europe. He is taking it anyhow, but, of course, he would much rather have it by agreement so that he can present himself as a gentleman and a keeper of treaties.

I cannot see that the negotiation of this treaty ends the system of general blackmail which has kept Europe in an agonized uncertainty for the last few years. The net result of it is that England and France have perhaps won back their old and dubious ally in case of war. If this is as far as it goes, then the hope of doing more than postpone war is chimerical.

And my guess is that the eventual price which may have to be paid will be the abrogation of the French-Soviet pact, in which case Germany will be infinitely stronger than she was in 1914 and, in which case, Germany and Russia will come together in one way or another sooner or later. And then we will have the real menace to the democratic world.

This column continues to be skeptical and not too over-optimistic regarding the effect of this treaty in the long run. We shall have to wait and see what concessions, if any, France, England, and Italy acting together can wring out of Germany in Central Europe.

Hitler does not plan a "conquest" of Central Europe. He plans penetration and hegemony under the threat of force. And it's very hard to deal with this kind of expansion by agreements, unless France can induce Britain and Italy to back her up in supporting her old allies in Central Europe.

The agreement to suspend propaganda against each other will be interesting to watch. This may be interpreted in Great Britain to mean the suspension of all anti-Fascist opinion. It's amazing what censorship already exists in England against any utterances likely to hurt the feelings of the Fascists, and, of course, in protecting German and Italian Fascists against attacks in the British press the British government also protects English Fascists.

A Program for The Opposition

By WALTER LIPPMANN

TO ARGUE about the wisdom of "pump-priming" by government expenditures is at the moment rather beside the point.

The President's program is only in very minor degree, if at all, a pump-priming operation. For the essence of true pump-priming is to make a sudden sharp increase of government expenditures financed neither by taxes nor by the loan of real savings. Merely to spend a lot of money is not pump-priming. Unless the priming represents a true deficit of what the government spends over what it takes in, and unless the deficit is financed by inflationary money, there is no priming. Thus in 1937-'38 the government has been spending a huge amount. But because it has taken in taxes, including the social security taxes, about as much as it has spent, and has done almost no net borrowing except to buy gold, there has been no pump-priming.

It is doubtful whether the new program calls for any considerable amount of pump-priming. The only important increase of expenditure proposed, for W. P. A., is not really an increase of expenditure. It is merely a proposal not to decrease the rate of expenditures, not to retrench in 1938 as was originally intended when the new budget, which goes into effect this coming July, was formulated. The other part of the scheme, the proposal for P. W. A. loans and grants, would eventually look like pump-priming. But as this money cannot be spent quickly and in large forceful doses, it cannot be regarded seriously as pump-priming.

The fact of the matter is that the Roosevelt Administration entered this depression with expenditures already at such a high level that it does not dare to step them up suddenly and drastically in order to prime the pump. Because Mr. Roosevelt failed to retrench in the good years, he does not really dare to prime the pump in this bad year. So he is adding no important positive stimulus through government expenditures. He is merely negatively refraining from carrying out the retrenchments that he talked about hopefully a few months ago. He is pretending to prime the pump, and rather hoping to create the impression that this is what he is doing, when, in fact, he is merely proposing to continue spending and taxing at the high level which he reached about 1936.

If the President is not proposing to prime the pump, the opposition is not seriously proposing to refuse to spend the money he asks for. This is demonstrated by the bill just introduced by Representative Bacon of New York. It is, I think, an admirable bill and of the greatest importance, but it accepts the President's estimate about the need of not retrenching on relief. Mr. Bacon, if I understand him correctly, proposes to do what the President wants, namely to spend on W. P. A. at the rate of nearly 180 millions a month rather than at the rate originally contemplated of slightly more than 100 millions a month.

And on the other item, the P. W. A., Senator Glass is objecting not to the idea of government loans and more or less concealed subsidies for more public works; he is arguing that the R. F. C. already has the necessary funds available under a bill he recently sponsored.

It is desirable to fix all this in mind if we are to get away from unreal issues and devote our attention to the real issues. There are two real issues before Congress. The first is whether the President is to be left with the huge personal and factional power to allocate several billion dollars. The second is whether Congress, exerting its constitutional authority over revenues, will refuse to vote more money until it has obtained concessions from the President—concessions on the Senate tax bill, on peace with the utilities, on a reform of his labor policy.

The first issue turns on the question of reducing the personal power of the President by taking away his control over immense sums of money. The second issue turns upon compelling him to revise his polices enough to make effective a recovery program based, not on government expenditure, but primarily on the expanded use of private credit. If the opposition in Congress will take a clear and resolute position on these two issues, it will be on firm ground. For at this moment there is no point in discussing the amount of the expenditures. The opposition should center its attention on the control of the amount and on obtaining concessions in regard to taxes, utilities, and labor.

As regards the control of the expenditures, the opposition should, I believe, take its stand on the principles of the Bacon bill. This bill provides that the money for relief shall be allocated not by the President but by a board, presumably a non-partisan board. It would be spent by the states, not by Federal appointees, and states could obtain Federal money only by putting up money of their own to prove their good faith. Under a system of this sort, the dangerous and demoralizing concentration of personal power in the President would be effectively liquidated. It would not take relief out of politics. But it would take relief out of Presidential politics, and, in an election year, this is particularly desirable.

The opposition should rally around the Bacon bill and, having perfected it, should make it the issue in the coming debate.

Simultaneously, the leaders of the opposition, more specifically the Garner Democrats, should make it known to the White House that they will vote none of these appropriations until the President yields on the Senate tax bill, until he gives evidence of a willingness to make peace with the utilities, and until he gives them assurances about his labor policy. They have the power, and they could readily obtain the necessary popular support, for a movement of this kind, and there is nothing in such a program which deprives the President of any of his rightful authority or impairs any of his genuine reforms.

This Week In Sports

By the Grandstander

Manager Viets of Cleveland is having his troubles with Catcher Hemsley. Hemsley can hold the fast balls of Bob Feller but seems to have trouble disciplining himself and so gets into trouble. He has been fined and suspended by Viets who hopes Hemsley will stop being the Peck's Bad Boy of the Cleveland team.

There seems to be agitation about for the summer hardball baseball season and Addison has entered a team in the Little Six League. Have not heard who is promoting it nor who will be playing. There should be some good baseball tho from the list of former high school stars in the vicinity.

—o—

The past few nights have been conducive to good baseball practice and Coach Miller has the high school stars well out in the open trying to put them over.

—o—

Coach Frank Finnerty of the Ag basketball team is looking forward to another successful season next year with a good frosh squad still practicing this season. His teams have won county pennants for five consecutive years, which is not bad in any league.

—o—

I can imagine that Di Maggio is feeling keenly the loss of his $148 daily while he is not playing. However, if he proves handy with the stick during the coming season he will probably get the money back in a bonus from Colonel Ruppert.

Bicycling 10,000 miles in 14 months is the feat of Mr. and Mrs. C. J. McDonlan of North Sidney, Australia.

—o—

Dizzy Dean is bothered with leg trouble according to his brother Daffy, but on the basis of early season returns he seems to be in good shape. Bob Feller also seems to be in pretty fair trim.

—o—

Booming bats all over the map heralded the junior generation breaking in with a bang and a flourish during the National League's opening week play. The senior circuit's greatest wave of new stars in years made its mark in every orchard — Koy, Mueller, Triplett, Slaughter, McCormick, West and the rest. In Pittsburg Forbes Field fans found their own young-man-of-the-hour in the shape of a new junior partner in their far-famed, long-established outfield firm, whose 1938 shingle reads: "Waner Bros. & Rizzo".

—o—

Apexing the youth movement for fame and fortune, of course, was the Philadelphia opening day scene, where a young outfielder on each side of the argument stepped up to the plate in the first inning for the first time at bat in the big league and promptly biffed the ball out of the lot. First Ernie Kay, for the visiting Brooklyn Dodgers, teed off on Wayne LaMaster for a homer into the left field bleachers. Then the Phils came to bat and lead-off man Heinie Mueller, Jimmy Wilson's favorate bat-boy ten years ago, became Manager Wilson's favorite recruit by belting Van Mungo for a homer over the right field fence.

These brave deeds topped the opening day thrill story of youthful phenomenalism but didn't tell it all. Out in Cincinnati Coaker Triplett, cub of the Cubs, had two doubles and a single and Buck McCormick, Reds' new first-sacker, a double and a single. Max West, leading Bee juvenile, broke in with a single at the Polo Grounds, saving his initial major league homer for the season's second game.

—o—

In St. Louise Enos Slaughter and John Costa Rizzo, who battled it out as teammates last year at Columbus for the American Association batting crown, swung bats for hostile forces. Slaughter, victor for the 1937 title, was ahead in debut day laurels, too, with a double and two singles for the Cardinals. Rizzo's two hits were singles, but like West, the new Pirate punch unlimbered himself on the season's second day and showed the fans his 1937 specialty, the three-bagger touch, the department in which Rizzo led the American Association last year.

It was on the season's second day last year, too, that Rizzo started the batting streak that stands as his brightest contribution to the 1937 annals of fame, a streak of 36 consecutive games which lasted until May 28, when two Kansas City pitchers walked him his first four times up. He tried to beat out a bunt his last try, but it was no soap.

Bunting wasn't John's system during his streak. In No. 35 for instance, on May 25, the wallop came with two out in the ninth inning. It was a home run off of Kansas City pitcher Wilcy Moore, former major league ace. It gave Columbus a 6 to 5 victory and it gave Kansas City pitchers the feeling that Rizzo's weakness was the same one made famous by that greatest Pirate of all-time, Honus Wagner, a base on balls".

—o—

At the end of his 36-game spring jamboree, Rizzo's batting average was .428, even though he slumped to .358 by fall and lost the batting championship to his buddy, Slaughter. Partial paralysis when hit in the back by a pitched ball in July, and a leg injury in September was part of the story why Rizzo wasn't batting .428 at the season's finish.

Kansas City was his main jinx, however. Columbus marshalled a festive "Rizzo Night" August 25. They gave John a shot-gun, some deluxe golf clubs and a lot of other gifts. The visiting Kansas City pitchers gave him nothing but goose-eggs in four presentations. As had happened in May, this was just a reaction to ninth-inning pain recently given them by Rizzo. August 23, in the series opener, John had come up with two out in the ninth and bounced a home run on the rim of the right field fence for a 5 to 4 Columbus victory.

That's the type of slasher and slayer the Waner Bros. firm has with them this year. The type that rousts the bans out of their seats and up in the air throwing hats. They threw more than hats in the home town year before last one day when John's home town team, the Houston's Buffs, of the Texas League, went into the ninth trailing Beaumont, 1 to 0. One out and one man on base with Rizzo coming up.

Local-boy John worked his favorite trick then and there, the ninth-inning homer. Final score, Houston 2, Beaumont 1. the 10,000 home town fans threw hats, then passed them. The hat-passing collected about $100 in cash and nearly $200 worth of presents, a good rate of payment for ninth inning homers in any league.

—o—

Like Gus Mancuso, Pittsburgh newest hero is of Italian descent, transplanted in Houston. He's a right-hand hitter and thrower, due for his 25th birthday July 30. Between ninth-inning homers he has averaged about .300 in six straight years in 4 different leagues since leaving the sand-lots in 1931. First Bartlesville, Okla., Western Association, in 1932 for .341; then Elmira, NYPA League, .307 in 1933 and .379 in 1934, the champion.

He finished that season with Houston and stayed with the Buffs in 1935 and 1936, .312 and .307 respectively. Besides his money-homer at home in 1936 he made history in Fort Worth knocking one over the 20-feet high screen in centerfield more than 400 feet from home plate, the first time anybody had done that at LaGrave Field for 11 years.

—o—

When Bill Benswanger, Pittsburgh's president, laid $25,000 on the line last fall for Rizzo, plus such playing strength as Tommy Padden, Bud Hafey and Bernie Cobb, he was putting not only punch in the Pirates in the person of young Rizzo but a flash and a dash that is making the left wing of the Waner Bros. emporium as lively a sector and as sparkling a spot as the demands of Big Poison in right and Little Poison in center could specify.

Bureau Leaders Discuss Home Improvements

At a recent meeting of Home Bureau unit leaders in Housing and Household Management accomplishments of the past year and plans for the coming year were discussed. The meeting was in charge of Mrs. Ruth Comstock, housing specialist; Mrs. Arling Cobb, housing representative of the executive committee; and Mrs. Lois Mathewson, county agent. Leaders met in the morning at the community house in Canisteo with Mrs. Comstock and Mrs. Cobb conducting the discussion with housing leaders, and Mrs. Mathewson in charge of household management. Following luncheon at the tea room the entire group discussed together new lighting equipment and saw an exhibit of some of the newest ideas in converting lamps which give inadequate or glaring lights into lamps that give the proper amount and the right kind of light.

Addison unit was represented at this meeting by Mrs. Thomas Hopper, Mrs. Floyd Van Nortwick, Mrs. Earl Beatty and Mrs. Raymond Dann.

Suggestions made for projects to be worked out in household management for the coming year were: The study of home accidents, their cause and prevention; how to work out and make an index and catalog for Home Bureau bulletins, printed materials and recipes; the study of points to consider in buying springs, mattresses and blankets; projects on housecleaning, home nursing and kitchen conferences, made available to units who have not already taken this work.

In the housing group some suggestions for projects for the coming year were study clubs on such topics of interest as old china, glass, furniture, etc; color in the home to be worked out for various rooms; floor finishes and their care; selection of wallpaper; repair of electrical equipment; selection, mounting, framing and hanging of pictures. Unit housing leaders are planning a tour for later in the spring when they will visit one another's home to see what has been accomplished and to help with discussion of further plans.

Farmers May Obtain Credit

Farmers of Steuben county who desire to obtain credit in order to carry out the practices according to the 1938 Agricultural Conservation Program may do so this year under one of two plans, according to an announcement made today by the Agricultural Conservation committee.

One plan of credit would be known as the assignment of payment, in which case the expected 1938 payments for performing soil building practices would be assigned by the farmer to some individual, bank, or dealer of fertilizer and seed, by mutual agreement.

Necessary blanks to be filled out in order that payment may be properly assigned are now in the hands of the Agricultural Conservation Office on the third floor of the Farmer's & Mechanics' Bank Building, Bath. Any farmer in Steuben county who has filed a worksheet will be eligible to assign his check to another party and thereby obtain credit for materials desired.

Another type of credit available this spring is a loan made available through the Farm Security Administration. Applications for these loans may also be filled out at the Agricultural Conservation Office at Bath.

Further information regarding either of these two types of credit may be obtained there also or at the farm bureau office. According to the committee, those farmers desiring to obtain credit should do so at an early date, and not wait until the day that it is desired.

The Rambler

The tall story tellers, the gardners are now having their fling and will for the next few months. Already some have been bragging how high their peas are and when they will have corn. One fellow even told me he would have corn from his garden by the Fourth of July.

—o—

The holiday times bring back many children of some of the older residents of Addison or any other town. And some of these children in turn bring their children with them. The old home looks pretty good. Then their children grow and leave the nest and Mother and Dad are right where they were when they started, together and alone. This restless life and march of progress that has driven or called many of us from home seems rather uncalled for when we realize it means leaving home, and for what?

—o—

The new street commissioner is sure keeping Main Street clean. With tourist traffic becoming more abundant, it will be great to have the street clean throughout the entire summer.

—o—

The little Rambler is beginning to make himself heard and his chief interests in life seem to be eating and sleeping, both of which he does to perfection.

—o—

Not that I like to brag or anything, but the Rev. Ward Flaxington, who spoke at the Father and Son banquet Monday night here, is a former newspaper man and so, he "knows his stuff," as one of the kids said.

—o—

The Boss' wife was speaking about daylight saving Sunday morning and when she looked at her watch it had jumped an hour, or gone on advance time without her knowing it. The wish was father to the idea, for the watch knew what she wanted.

—o—

An indication of how taxes have advanced during the past comes to light from Troupsburg. Dix Curtis told of seeing a fellow up there with 40 years collection of tax receipts. His first receipt is for $3. on $200 property. His tax for 1938 on the same piece of property, without improvements, of any kind is $12 on property now assessed at $400.

—o—

I actually talked with and touched a woman who won a vacuum cleaner in one of these national contests. Yep, Mrs. Forrest Perry was some surprised last Saturday when she was notified that she had won an expensive cleaner for having written a statement as to why she liked a certain commercial product. So these contests are on the level alright .

—o—

I have been asked to query village oficials as to how long the rope is to be left in front of the village hall where the brick fell off. The suggestion has been made that either the rope be taken away or trucks and cars be prohibited from parking right at the place where people have to step into the road.

—o—

Was taken for Mayor Sisto by one woman Wednesday and later a feminine voice on the phone wanted to know if I was Rev. Lacey

Members of the Senior Class of the Addison High School appear very grateful for the opportunity given them to go to Washington. They thank the many people who made this possible in a communication in today's Advertiser.

—o—

The community owes a vote of thanks to the American Legion and to Dr. Horace E .Auringer for their work in promotion and carrying through the First Aid class here. There are 15 successful members of the class who are to be awarded Red Cross first aid certificates.

—o—

Since daylight saving came to some communities the Erie has changed some of its trains to a later hour. Means more time at home to travelers now as trains leave Addison for the last later in the day.

—o—

That's all.

—The Rambler.

State Educator Writes On Things Local School Trustees Should Consider

Commissioner of Education Frank P. Graves has sent a letter to trustees and patrons of common school districts in which he points out the worthwhileness of being a school trustee and some of its obligations. The letter reads as follows:

"The business of the annual school district meeting is your immediate concern. This is by no means a new procedure but includes election of officers, provision of sufficient funds to meet the financial needs of the district for the ensuing year, provision of maintenance of school property, provision for necessary supplies and equipment, and action relative to transportation of pupils who otherwise would be deprived of school advantages in whole or in part.

"I trust that you will go about these duties as school patrons with fixed purpose and mature judgment. May I suggest that you give each item of business the careful attention which it deserves? Do not become disturbed over honest difference of opinion. True progress is possible only through such differences.

"To be selected as trustee should be regarded as an honor and as an opportunity to render public service. The trustee's outstanding contribution will be to select the right type of teacher or teachers. He should seek the best that the district can afford and should look to the district superintendent for advice in this and in other matters. The trustee should also see that there is a proper accounting of funds in accordance with the regulations prescribed by the Department of Education.

"School library, recreation and health facilities should be given careful attention. In fact, the school can be regarded as a home for pupils and teachers, during the time it is occupied, only where the entire surroundings have been made healthful and homelike.

Sheriff Censored By State Inspector in Official Report

Joseph Bailey agrees to stop practice of prisoners washing official's cars — Jail in good condition — Department praised for conditions of buildings.

The Steuben County jail was inspected by James McShillinglaw. The report reads:

'Inspected March 8, 1938. Joseph L. Bailey, sheriff. Mrs. Bailey is matron. Active supervision is provided at all hours by guards working in eight hour shifts. There are also a laundryman and an extra guard to supervise men working outside the jail. A turnkey has charge of the jail during the day.

Population

There were 26 male inmates at the time of inspection classified as follows:

Serving sentence, adults 21; minors, 1; awaiting court action, 4.

Prisoners were properly classified.

Plant

The jail is being painted through out. The work is being done by inmates and the appearance of the jail is being very much improved.

When the jail was built the electric light switches were placed in the hall of the residence part of the jail and the large hall in front of the cells used for women. The locations are bad as it is necessary for the officer to enter these sections to turn the lights on or off. It would add to the efficiency of operation if changes were made to permit all the lights being controlled from the office

How expensive this change would be can be told only after examination by a competent electrical wiring contractor, but in any event, it would appear to be a justifiable expense.

The mattresses in some of the rooms on the top floor are badly soiled and torn and should be replaced.

Employment

Sentenced male prisoners are employed around the institution and grounds, at the county home and the county sanatorium. It was stated that prisoners are always under the supervision of a guard or a deputy sheriff when working outside the jail. All prisoners working outside the jail should be searched before leaving the jail and upon returning to be sure that contraband neither leaves nor enters the jail.

Among the tasks assigned to prisoners has been the washing of automobiles, privately owned by members of the Board of Supervisors. Section 29, Article III of the State Constitution reads in part as follows:

"no person in any such prison, penitentiary, jail or reformatory, shall be required or allowed to work, while under sentence thereto, at any trade, industry or occupation, wherein or whereby his work, or the product of profit of his work, shall be farmed out, contracted, given or sold to any person, firm association or corporation ***"

Section 70 of the Correction Law is almost identical in language.

It would appear therefore that the practice of permitting jail prisoners to wash cars which are not the property of the county is a violation of both the Constitution and the statute and should be stopped at once.

Meals

Three meals a day are served, prisoners eating in their cells. The food supplies on hand appeared to be of good quality and the menu in force is satisfactory. It would be an improvement if the menu were worked out on a ten day instead of a weekly basis as has been done in some other county jails with success.

Personal Hygiene

Each inmate receives a clean issue of bedding, including blankets and towels, on admission, and in case of sentenced males, an issue of institutional clothing. Sheets, pillow slips, towels and the clothing of inmates is washed at least weekly in the jail laundry. It was stated that no blanket is issued to a prisoner after use by another until it has been relaundered

All must bathe on admission and at least weekly thereafter but they may bathe more frehuently if they wish. There is a supply of safety razors in the office, issued for use under supervision, and haircutting is done by "handymen".

Civilian clothing of male prisoners is kept in a room on the first floor.

The jail physician is appointed regularly. He visits the jail twice a week and is subject to call. Only those prisoners suspected of being afflicted with venereal disease are examined by him on Admission Those working in the kitchen are all examined , it was stated. There are no hospital facilities in the jail.

Visits and Mail

All visits with prisoners, other than by attorneys and clergymen, are now held in visiting booths, it was stated. A record is kept of all visitors to inmates.

Mail is reported to be censored both incoming and outgoing, and a record kept of all outgoing mail.

Packages for and Property of Inmates

All packages for inmates are said to be carefully searched.

Money and valuables are said to be kept in the safe with a record kept of expenditures for purchases by the inmates, and a receipt taken when the inmate leaves the jail.

Administrative Changes

Since the last inspection the officers have been directed to count all prisoners in the jail when they come on duty and they sign a book certifying to the number; they also must check all outside doors and enter in a book the fact that they found them locked or unlocked as the case may be, and they also receipt for the number of keys in the key cabinet in the office. Officers in the basement, it yas stated, are not permitted to retain the keys.

CHAPTER CHATTER

Mr. Finnerty spent the Easter vacation in Addison. He took advantage of the vacation time to visit many of the "Ag" boys and to check on their projects.

—o—

A short course meeting of the young farmers was held last Thursday night in the Addison High School. A large number were present. A lime test of soil was demonstrated by Mr. Finnerty. Some of the boys brought in soil samples to be tested for acidity. By testing the soil it was possible to determine the approximate amount of lime necessary to correct soil acidity on any specific field.

—o—

The freshman basketball season of the "Ag" department has been completed. Many of the boys are prospects for next year's team. Members of the team include: D. Martin, J. Hall, R. Johnson, F. McCaig, R. Snyder, G. Bouton, B. Miles, W. Stewart, K. Root and J. Strauss. The practice since the regular season closed has improved the team and some of the boys have a chance to make the "Ag" varsity next year.

—o—

The Corning Northside High School F. F. A. Chapter held a father and Son banquet last night. Two boys from the Addison F. F. A. Chapter were present. The boys were accompanied by Mr. Finnerty. The banquet was a big success.

—o—

The local chapter in conjunction with the Commuters' Club are planning to hold a dance Friday evening in the high school auditorium. Music will be furnished by the Reagan boys for both round and square dancing. This dance is held partly to help repay the Homemaking girls for work which they did at the Father and Son banquet. This is the second dance we have held this year and we hope it will be even more successful than the last one.

Large Crowd at Addison Scout Father and Son Banquet

I venture to say that for every ten dollars which has been spent in this community for scouting, Addison has saved one hundred dollars in expense which would have come from boys getting into trouble, who are now directed in the right way.

"We have a fine scout troop in my church and I have found it is a veritable moral dynamo to head boys right. Where you have good scouting, and where you have lousy leadership you have lousy scouting. Thru the efforts of Percy Dunn we have had marvelous leadership in Steuben County, and scouting is a going concern in Steuben.

"Tonight I want to talk to you boys about those nuisances, our dads. I well remember in my high school days that my father was bawling me out one day in the presence of a young lady. When he got all out of breath so he had to stop, this friend broke in with the remark, 'I know how trying parents can be'. Dads can be not only trying, but a downright nuisance. There was a time when a man ruled his household with an iron hand. That was a great day to be a husband. He was the undisputed head of the house. Today father is a nuisance, as a husband. He is also a nuisance as a dad.

"For dad has funny notions such as, that boys should shovel snow, take out ashes and cut wood when there is good sliding to be done over on that hill. Then he gets the notion his boy should get good marks in school . . . I also have an idea dad is something of a hero. He sticks to the grind and shoulders the load day after day to provide for his family and maintain a home. He can make last year's suit do another year and stick to a threadbare overcoat so mother and the kids can get their needs out of the clothing money.

"I think that sons of any age are old enough to realize, and deep down in their hearts boys love the old man for it. Deep down in their hearts boys hate a yellow streak in anyone, yet they often forget dad may be sweating blood to give his family what they need in such days of depression as these. Sometimes boys complain, and yowl because they can't have this or that. Sometimes they'll take all the money they can get out of dad, even though it needs a lot for dad to keep them in school. Sometimes they waste their time in school, and in spite of the fact dad is scraping together every cent he can to keep them there. When a boy does these things he's got a yellow streak, for they are as yellow as a boy can do.

One of the good things about scouting is that it teaches boys to do their part. When I was a boy at home each one of us was supposed to do his part. There were meals to be gotten, dishes to wash, beds to make, lawns to cut, ashes to be carried—Dad had his part, mother had her part, and they did them. But the idea I had to get into my noodle was that when I rode free someone else had to shoulder my load. I had to learn to shoulder a fair share of the work of that home. It is the same thing with a family as it is with a church, or with a football team. If I did not shoulder my share of the load I was yellow.

"Do you know the fellow we disliked the most in the army? It wasn't the fellow who was scared. Everyone was afraid when he got up in there, if he hadn't been he just would not have been normal. No the fellow we disliked most was the fellow who shirked his part on an assignment, so that those who were with him had to do theirs, plus his.

"You boys get that idea into your heads. If you expect to have your share of the family comforts, do your share of the family work. If there is anything that gets my goat it is a boy who shirks his part. Every member of a scout troop must do his part, carry his share of the load.

"It must be a case of all for one, and one for all in every organization. I learned that for fare-you-well during the war. We were located on the St.Mihiel front about three miles ahead of our artillery which was firing over our heads. Every once in awhile an enemy shell would break our telephone line cutting off our communication with our headquarters. We fixed it time after time, then one night as we were all tired out it went out of order again. 'What's the difference,' we said. 'Let's go to sleep and forget about it tonight'. Well we couldn't sleep, so out into the blackness of the woods we crawled, following that wire back to find the broken end, and then we had to feel on hands and knees to locate the other end and patch it.

"Finally we got it fixed, but meanwhile our artillery had opened fire. Suddenly we saw a light go up from our infantry just ahead, a light with three balls on it. We knew what that meant—it meant that our guns were firing on too short range, and shelling our own lines. Well we got to that telephone just as quick as we could and sent word back, and directly the range was lifted over the heads of our doughboys. The next day I went back to headquarters after something and an officer said to me, 'It was lucky you fellows got your line fixed when you did last night, it was the only line working on our front. That whole regiment would have been wiped out if you hadn't sent word back.'

"Well every time I think of that night I shiver to think what might have happened, a whole regiment of doughboys killed by their own guns, if we had shirked our duty and gone to sleep. It may not be as serious as that if you shirk your duty, but let me say to each of you boys, that in troop, in school and in the home, carry your share of the load".

CHID HEALTH DAY

On which would you put the highest value, that baby smiling up from his crib, or that rose-bush blooming in the back yard? The answer, of course, is easy, and yet! Commenting on child welfare, Luther Burbank, the botanical genius, once said: "If we had paid no more attention to our plants than we have to our children, we would now be living in a jungle of weeds."

A jungle of weeds! In what way have we failed our children? However one may answer that question, there is one thing on which we can all agree. We can mobilize the forces of medicine to give our children, rich and poor, the best possible physical equipment with which to wage the battle of life. We can make healthy children a watchword for better living.

It is just such a program as this which is symbolized in Child Health Day, officially on the calendar for May 1. Child health, of course, is not a one day problem, but through a concentration of interest in a one day celebration , the U. S. Public Health Service hopes to make the other 364 days on the calendar Child Health Days as well.

In this era of medical miracles there is no reason why any child should enter adulthood with preventable physical handicaps. Disease may be controlled, maladjustments corrected, and handicaps lessened. The result? Children prepared not only physically, but mentally and spiritually as well, to take their place in the pattern of tomorrow's living.

Child Health Day! That's one celebration we all can cheer for!

Wallace Hill Is Appointed Steuben Area Scout Head; To Assume Duties On May 1

Greensburg, Pa. Man Has Served Four Years As Executive of Westmoreland-Fayette Council

Wallace Hill of Greensburg, Pa., for the past four years Scout Executive of the Westmoreland-Fayette Council, has been selected to succeed Percy L. Dunn as Scout Executive of the Steuben Area Council, Boy Scouts of America, Council President David E. Gray announced today.

Mr. Hill will assume his new duties on May 1. Elmo F. Randolph, Field Executive who has been in charge of the Council since Executive Dunn left in February to take a position in the Manhattan Council in New York City, will continue as Field Executive.

Prior to becoming executive of the Westmoreland-Fayette Council, Mr. Hill was Scout Executive of the Homstead District Council in Pennsylvania for a period of five years and assistant executive at Cincinnati, O., for three years. He has met with unusual success in each Council, officials state.

A student of Scouting, Mr. Hill is strong both in Council organization and working with Troops, according to his record. He has one of the finest sets of personal Scouting files in the country, according to Region 3 executives.

Mr. Hill attended the University of Cincinnati, Ohio Wealeyan University and the University of Pittsburgh, Pa. He has B. A. and M. A. degrees and is also a graduate of the National Scout Executives Training School. His thesis for his Masters degree was "programming to Increase Boy Scout Tenure." It covers numerous ways of presenting Scout advancement requirements.

While attending the Ohio University, Mr. Hill was active in athletics and at one time held the state championship for the mile run.

Hints to Gardeners

Flowers For a Purpose

FLOWERS are a delight anywhere and at any time. The following suggestions, however, will be helpful to those persons whose flower garden space is limited or for those who wish to grow flowers for a certain reason. These gardeners want "flowers for a purpose."

Most of us want flowers to cut. By planting packets of seed of any three or four of the following items, the gardener will have an excellent garden for cutting: Annuals—antirrhinum, aster, calendula, calliopsis, candytuft, carnation, bachelor button, cosmos, dahlia, annual lupin, marigold, nasturtium, salpiglossis and zinnia; Perennials—columbine, coreopsis, delphinium, gaillardia grandiflora, perennial lupin, pyrethrum (painted daisy), and shasta daisy.

With a little planning, the gardener may have cut flowers early and late. For early cut flowers grow calliopsis, candytuft, calendula—annuals, and coreopsis, delphinium, gaillardia grandiflora and pyrethrum—perennials.

Calliopsis, cosmos, gaillardia picta, marigold, nasturtium, poppy nudicaule, scabiosa and zinnia will provide cut flowers for midsummer. Several of these, principally zinnia, marigold and gaillardia, are equally suitable for late bloom. Other late blooming flowers for cutting include antirrhinum, aster, cosmos and dahlia.

1-MINUTE SAFETY TALKS

Take—and Like—Your Medicine

I burn when I see somebody driving a car down our street faster than he should.

Yet, I'd burn if I were doing the same thing and a cop caught me and gave me a ticket.

But I oughtn't to.

I ought to remember that my little Hildegarde crosses that street several times a day and plays on the other side, and that traffic regulation and enforcement are for her protection.

I ought for her sake, to be so loyal to traffic regulations that I would feel good about getting a ticket.

There is always injustice in any ticket WE get for a traffic violation. Let's just have sense enough or sense of humor enough to remember that our own ticket is invariably going to seem unjust....and let's have sportsmanship enough to take our medicine in the name of a good cause.

At the present rate, according to estimates made by The Travelers Insurance Company, one out of every three children faces the PROBABILITY of death or maiming from motor accidents in the course of a lifetime.

So what we need is more tickets, not fewer tickets. And no "FIXING".

I like the spirit of that wife of a New York magistrate who some time ago appeared in traffic court and paid a fine.

I think some types of patriotism and public spirit are not to be the bunk, but I believe we should all lean over backwards to take what's coming to us for traffic rule violations.

On your next trip to New York go overnight via the Erie. Enjoy the comfort of clean, quiet, air-conditioned Pullmans. Arrive at journey's end refreshed and relaxed—free from "travel fatigue."

And remember, Erie will take you safely—and economically.

STATE OF NEW YORK SUPREME COURT COUNTY OF STEUBEN

DANIEL J. COLBERT,
Plaintiff,
vs,
JEROME B. MANLEY AND THE PEOPLE OF THE STATE OF NEW YORK, BEING THE COUNTY OF CATTARAUGUS, IN THE STATE OF NEW YORK,
Defendants.

In pursuance of a judgment of foreclosure and sale duly granted in the above entitled action on the 4th day of April, 1938, and entered in the Steuben County Clerk's office at Bath, New York on the 4th day of April, 1938, I, Hugh A. Varn, the undersigned Referee, in said judgment named, will sell at public auction at the front door of the Law Offices of Charles L. Crane on the West side of Main Street in the Village of Addison, Steuben County, New York, on the 21st day of May, 1938 at ten o'clock in the forenoon of that day the premises described in said judgment as follows:

ALL THAT TRACT OR PARCEL OF LAND, situate in the Village of Addison, County of Steuben and State of New York, known as the James E. Wilson house and lot on the south side of Front Street and on the north side of the Canisteo River, bounded and described as follows: on the north by Front street; on the east by lands formerly owned by Kate Paxton; on the south by lands of the Erie Railroad Company and on the west by village lot supposed to be owned by Charles Root. This said lot contains about 40 square rods of land more or less.

Being the same premises described in a deed to Ray D. Manley and Sarah M. Manley, his wife, as tenants by the entirety, by Elizabtth Wilson Norton by deed recorded in the Office of the Clerk of the County of Steuben in Liber 354 of Deeds at page 1; the said Sarah M. Manley having pre-deceased the said Ray D. Manley, and the said Ray D. Manley, having died, intestate, in the County of Steuben on the 18th day of April, 1936 leaving the party of the first part and Genevieve H. Shearer as sole distributees; the said Genevieve H. Shearer having conveyed her interest in said premises to the party of the first part by deed dated May 5, 1936, recorded in Steuben County Clerk's Office in Liber 456 of Deeds at page 211; being the same premises described in a deed to James E. Wilson, late of Addison, N. Y., deceased, by deed recorded in the Office of the Clerk of the County of Steuben in Liber 156 of Deeds at page 82.

Dated, April 5, 1938.

Home Bureau Committee Makes Plans for Future

The executive committee of the Steuben County Home Bureau met recently to discuss various plans for the future. The meeting was in charge of Mrs. Gordon Conderman of Howard, acting chairman, and other members present were Mrs. Arling Cobb of Greenwood, secretary; Mrs. Aaron Putnam of Wheeler; Mrs. Harry Spence of Hornell; Francis Acker of Hartsville, supervisor representative; Mrs. Orrilla Wright, assistant state leader from the College of Home Economics at Ithaca.

Various matters of interest which appeared in routine reports included the announcement of a new unit organized at Campbell with officers as follows: Chairman, Mrs. Carl Lovell; vice chairman, Mrs. Robert Shaut; secretary, Mrs. Leland Jack; assistant secretary, Mrs. Anna Littell; and treasurer, Mrs. Clara Platt. A request has been made by a group of women in Woodhull for a Home Bureau organization and a meeting will be scheduled there within a few weeks.

Membership report showed 494 paid members which is very close to the 500 goal mark set early in the year. Local unit vice chairmen will be asked to check up on their membership and make sure that all have been turned in. These local unit officers have done a fine job beginning with their membership contest last fall and continuing with their membership work throughout the year. Members of the temporary 4-H Committee, Mrs. Conderman and Mrs. Cobb, reported the organization of five Girls' 4-H Clubs, one in Fremont, two in Woodhull and two in Howard. A third member of this committee, Mrs. Helen Reynolds of Painted Post, was not present at the meeting. Local units at Howard, Painted Post, Savona, Kanona and South Dansville, have sent contributions to the scholarship fund now being collected. This is the fourth scholarship to be sponsored by the State Federation of Home Bureaus and to which anyone interested may contribute any amount.

Plans were discussed for the annual dinner for supervisors and Mrs. Aaron Putnam of Wheeler was appointed as chairman. Others on her committee are Mrs. Stanley Hoagland of Campbell Creek and Mrs. Leon Fenton of Savona. In addition to the dinner this year plans are being made for an exhibit of some Home Bureau work, to be in charge of Mrs. Gordon Conderman.

The possibility of an exhibit to be put on at the State Fair this year was discussed and Mrs. Harry Spence was appointed chairman of a committee to work on further plans.

Members who will attend the District Federation meeting in Canandaigua May 2 are Mrs. Conderman, official delegate, Mrs. Spence, Mrs. Cobb and Mrs. Reynolds.

Miss Wright assisted in discussing and planning for a training school for local unit officers to be held some time early in June. Special speakers are being invited and the meeting is planned not only to be a training school but also an inspirational meeting.

The executive committee will hold its next regular meeting on Friday, May 27.

BRASS TACKS For POULTRY RAISERS

By BURTON P. THARP

Care of Day-Old Chicks

So many people buy a handful of day-old chicks at five and ten cent stores without the slightest conception of how to care for them after they get them. Most chicks on the market today are healthy ones but they die in great numbers because the purchasers cannot take care of them properly without some knowledge of their care.

Apparently many regard day-old chicks as they would a canary. They put them in some sort of a cage and give them something to eat and drink.

Temperature is a vital factor in raising small chicks. They become chilled and sick in a room temperature too warm for human habitation. When they break from their shells in the incubator they find themselves in a temperature of about 103 degrees Fahrenheit and are comfortable in it. Before they reach the purchaser they have been "hardened" so they are comfortable at 90 degrees.

The same results are obtained from taking a day-old chick from a store brooder in which the temperature is 90 and placing them in a box with a temperature of 65 as you would get by placing a person from his comfortable 70 to a house where the temperature is 45 or 50 degrees. The results are discomfort and illness in both cases.

It is imperative that the day-old chick have a brooder of some sort to which to go for warmth. At first the temperature should be 90 and then lowered gradually during the first two or three weeks. The chicks are the best judges of the temperature they need. If they crowd together too closely they are not warm enough.

Parents do not expect young babies to thrive on round steak and yet the same people will buy chicks and expect them to live in a box without sunshine on small grain or bread.

If no feed is available the first day boil an egg and feed it to them mashed. Get a good chick starting mash from a reliable feed dealer. A good starting mash contains cod liver oil and green food, in fact everything for healthy growth. Grain is not needed at all during the first two weeks but may be fed after that. The drinking water should have the chill removed at first.

Chicks that are poorly cared for do not make good pets for the children. If you do not intend to give them proper care why buy them?

COURTS AND CARDS

The courts of law are having a lot of fun with the card players!

First came the Board of Tax Appeals with a ruling that you can charge up some card losses on your income tax, if—and the if is a big one—you play with assurance that you are going to win.

Next came a legal decision that a card game isn't a game of chance but a game of skill. And now the California State Supreme Court has just ruled that a card player who calls for a new deal with a gun in his hands, isn't a robber, but well within his rights.

In the case in question, a certain Dave Rosen found himself broke at the end of a card game. With gun cocked, he demanded his money back, and got it. That, said the court, was a perfectly legal action.

When next you step out for that evening of bridge, don't forget to take your law books along. With things as they are, you never can tell!

How, What and Why

This paper has arranged with the Office of Information of the New York State Colleges of Agriculture and Home Economics to answer questions about problems of farm and home. If you enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope, and mention the name of this paper you will receive a direct reply to your query from the colleges. Do not ask more than one question in one letter or on one post card. Ask as many questions as you like, but make each one a separate communication.

Lower Butterfat Test?

Mrs. L. W., asks: "Will a high bacteria count in cows' milk lower the butterfat test?

"I want to sell my milking machine and my would-be buyer has been informed that by using the machines the bacteria count would be higher than milking by hand, and therefore lower his butterfat test".

Professor H. J. Brueckner of the dairy department answers: "So far as we know, there is no relation between the bacterial count of milk and the fat test.

"When a cow has a severe case of mastitis, the fat test is said to be lower, and, of course, the bacterial count in mastitis will be higher than normal. With typical cows, however, there should be no relation between bacterial count and fat test.

"When a milking machine is used, the bacterial count of the milk may possibly increase because when an additional piece of equipment is used in handling milk there is just one more chance for contaminating that milk.

"Even though the milking machine, as an additional piece of equipment, may increase the bacterial count, there is no reason for a lower fat test. We know that the highest testing milk is the last milk obtained during milking. If the machine does not milk the cow dry, then, of course, the fat test may be lowered; but it cannot be blamed on a possible higher-than-normal bacterial count."

Korean Clover

G. K. wants to know about Korean clover for hay and pasture this year.

Professor G. M. Serviss of the agronomy department answers: Korean clover is a name applied by part of the seed trade to Korean Lespedeza. The seed this year is cheap, while red clover and alsike seed are expensive.

"Many New York farmers are tempted to seed it for hay and pasture in place of their usual meadow and pasture mixture. In general, it does not seem wise for farmers in this state to sow any of the lespedezas for either hay or pasture. Certainly it should not be sown except in a small way as an experiment, or by those who can afford to take a loss."

Seem to Be Hornets

H. R., writes: "I live in an old house infested with what I think are hornets. They are quite large and can give a severe sting.

"They seem to stay in the attic, but in the spring and fall somehow swarm into the lower rooms. They have no nests, seeming to live in the hemlock studdings of the house, and are impervious to freezing, thawing, starvation, drouth and fly-spray.

"What can be done? I tried to draw you a picture of one of them but did not succeed very well. This fellow has a kind face, the others have not."

Dr. O. A. Johannsen, head of the entomology department, replies: "The specimen you sent is the yellow-legged social wasp. It has a nest, a single small comb of paper cells often found under the eaves of buildings, in garrets, sheds and barns.

"I have made a rough sketch of the nest. Remove the nests and you will have no more difficulty unless you have another invasion".

Best Soil for Alfalfa

E. W. asks: "What is the best soil for growing alfalfa and how much seed is required to plant an acre?

Professor G. H. Serviss of the agronomy department answers: "The best soil for growing alfalfa is a sweet, deep well drained loam. Never seed it on acid soils or soils that have a hardpan near the surface.

"Acid soils can be sweetened with lime, but it is not usually practical to till poorly drained land. Occasionally some alfalfa may be seeded in mixture if the drainage is not too bad but never clear.

"Seeding rate is from 12 to 15 pounds to the acre. The seed should always be inoculated and at least 400 pounds of 20 per cent superphosphate applied to the acre. Ontario Variegated and Grimm are the two recommended varieties".

Geneseo—The dramatic students of the normal school are building a portable stage for plays in Geneseo Normal's drama festival this week. "Romeo and Juliet" will be the play produced.

Motorists Asked to Examine Licenses

Albany, N. Y., April 23, 1938—Holders of one year drivers' licenses were urged by State Commissioner of Motor Vehicles, Charles A. Hartnett, today to examine carefully their licenses to determine the correct date for expiration.

Drivers' licenses which expired May 31, 1937 are not renewable after May 31, 1938, despite the extension granted last year.

Current chauffeurs' licenses which read "expire midnight, May 31, 1938" must be renewed on or before that date as no extension can be granted. Applications for such renewals may be obtained at all issuing offices on and after May 2, 1938.

Music is Feature of G.O.P. Rally— Gannett is Chief Speaker

Music will be one of the outstanding features of the Republican rally in the Masonic Cathedral, Corning on Saturday, May 7, District Attorney George A. King said recently. He has arranged to have installed in the Cathedral the electric organ that has attracted so much attention in the Mark Twain Hotel, Elmira, and it will be played by Harry Springer who is so often heard over the radio from the console of the pipe organ at the Keeney Theatre.

Mr. Springer is recognized as one of the outstanding organ artists of the Southern Tier and his recital, which will begin promptly at 6 P. M., will be well worth hearing.

In addition to this Mr. King has secured the services of the highly paid quartet from the Lake Street Presbyterian Church in Elmira and this group, with organ accompaniment will present a group of patriotic and rally songs.

The members of the quartet are Mrs. Ruth B. Lewis, Miss Claramae Brookman, William W. Osborne and Raymond S. Brookman. The latter will serve as song leader and also sing a solo. When the surprise feature of the evening is presented these singers will be heard to an unexpected advantage.

At this rally J. C. Latham, Republican county chairman, will entertain the 150 members of his county committee and the Republican organization will entertain the newspaper publishers and editors of Steuben to whom special tribute will be paid. Congressman W. Sterling Cole and Republican leaders from throughout the Congressional District will be present. The main address will be delivered by Frank E. Gannett of Rochester, head of the Gannett newspapers, and leader in the fight against the passage of the Government Reorganization Bill recently killed in the House of Representatives.

COMMUNICATION

April 26, 1938

Dear Friends:

The Senior Class of Addison High School wishes to thank the members of the community who made possible the seniors' educational trip to Washington, D. C. Each of us realizes the sacrifices which were made to enable us to enjoy our vacation, and we hope that we may well repay our community for the interest it has taken in us.

Especially, we appreciate the parents of the Seniors who so wholeheartedly supported our various activities, donated their time and money to us.

Our trip to Washington was a great success. We feel that we have profited from becoming better acquainted with the nation's capital, and because of our trip, we shall be better citizens in the future.

Very sincerely yours,
(Miss) Catherine Burton,
Secretary of the Senior Class

M. E. Youth Groups Plan Interesting May Meetings

Executives of the Epworth League and 20 and 30 Club of the Methodist Church met Wednesday night to plan meetings for the coming month.

The 20 and 30 group will meet Thursday, May 5 at 6:30 o'clock for a picnic supper. There will be a debate on "Celibacy is Preferable to Marriage".

The League members will meet Monday, May 2. Five of the League members will describe their experiences in Washington with the senior class during Easter Week.

The meeting scheduled for Monday, May 9, will be held Sunday, May 8 in the church at 6:30. Miss Vesta Wilson will lead the devotions with "Mother" as the theme. "Is Petty Cheating Ever Justified", will be the topic for discussion. The Rev. Garland G. Lacey will lead the discussion.

Monday, May 16, the League will play host to Woodhull and Painted Post Leaguers.

SAFETY BEGINS AT HOME

Every mother with small children can acquire the habit of placing cooking or heating utensils on the stove so that handles are turned away from grasping fingers, claim extension home management specialists of Pennsylvania State College.

Mr. and Mrs. Glice, Miss Lillian Glice and Harold Wheeler of Lock Haven, Pa., were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. William A. Paul.

"Godfrey" Type of Mad Comedy Called "Modern Whimsy"

"Modern Whimsy" is the descriptive phraseology coined by Director Elliott Nugent in regard to the new type of screen romantic comedy which has swept the country and brought a new ring to theatre box-offices. This new brand of film laugh-provoker comprises such pictures as "Theodora Goes Wild", 'My Man Godfrey" and "It's All Yours", a hectic laugh farce co-starring Madeline Carroll and Francis Lederer, opening Sunday at the Avon Theatre, for two days only.

In elaborating on this "Modern Whimsy" comedy, Nugent, who directed "It's All Yours," points out the fact that the hysterical brand of comedy seen in the aforementioned pictures strangely did not catch on with the public until after the depression. People were looking at "Grand Hotel", "Les Miserables" and other such pieces of heavy screen entertainment, says Nugent. The depression seemed to bring about an opposite reaction from Mr. and Mrs. Public but now movie-goers can't seem to get enough of the new and hilarious "Modern Whimsy."

Mischa Auer, who has come to the foreground as an expert comedian in this type of comedy, is also featured in "It's All Yours" with J. C. Nugent, Grace Bradley and George McKay, completing the cast of principals.

Miss Carroll, incidentally, appears in a comedy role for the first time in her screen career in "It's All Yours."

Elkland Baseball Nine Here Saturday Afternoon

The Addison High School baseball squad will open its season Saturday afternoon against the Elkland High School team on the high school diamond.

The game is scheduled for two o'clock. Members of Coach Miller's squad have been practicing diligently in preparation for this opening game. In addition to practice sessions the members of the squad have been playing practice games against a team of former high school players and town fellows.

Miss Esther Symonds was in Hornell Tuesday.

Addison Firemen Hosts to NYP Group

Welles and Phoenix Hose Companies of Addison sponsored the dinner of the New York-Penn Firemen's Association held in the Eagle Hote last Thursday night. The dinner was under the chairmanship of the Addison Chief, John O'Keefe and other members of the local companies.

The supper was served at 8 o'clock. This was followed by a program of entertainment. This consisted of a group of young children from Corning. They were under the guidance of Miss Margaret Gandrick. Those on the program were: Miss Frances Rumenapp in a buck dance; Miss Jacqueline Pulver in a military buck dance and Miss Marilyn Hanley and Bobby Smith in a waltz clog number. Each of the dancers responded with encores.

A short business meeting followed the entertainment. President William Kennedy presided. He spoke about the coming firemen's convention in Westfield, Pa., July 21. He asked that all fire companies be well represented. Mr. Briggs, president of Westfield village, spoke of the convention preparation. Mr. McCarthy, Corning, spoke of a recent meeting of Chiefs held in Elmira and asked the cooperation of all firemen in belonging to the association of firemen.

Missionary Play Presented At Union Service

The deputation team of the Cornell University Wesley Foundation were in Addison Sunday and took quite a prominent part in the services of the Methodist Church. There were three young men and one young lady here in the morning to work with the group of Sunday school students in teaching and worship.

The group went to Rathbone in the afternoon and there outlined what the Foundation is and what the young people seek to accomplish. They are formed from Methodist college students who feel they can aid in bringing the message of God to churches throughout the vicinity.

The group of nine were guests of young people of the Methodist Church at a supper in the church parlors Sunday night.

At the evening service, under the direction of the World Fellowship, which was a union service for the Presbyterian, Baptist and Methodist Congregations, the young people presented a missionary play "Ba Thane". The story was centered on the experiences of a Burmese youth after he became a Christian.

The Rev. Gene Durham, student pastor for the Methodists in Cornell University, accompanied the group. He spoke on the foundation and its work.

Over 150 attended the service. Prayer was offered by the Rev. John V. Axtell of the Presbyterian Church with the Rev. Garland G. Lacey assisting in the worship service.

Dr. Amos Stiker is in Alexander Louisana, where he gave a talk on "Immediate Dentures" before the Louisana State Dental Society. He will be gone a week.

The four million dollars Jackie Coogan supposed he had is said to have shrunk to $600,000 under the handling of his mother and stepfather, Bernstein. Even this amount may be held by Jackie's mother as it seems unlikely the young man can prove his own father established a trust fund out of his earnings as a child actor.

Republicans in Congress are charging that WPA workers have been used to distribute propaganda in favor of the President's huge plan of new spending. Congressman Taber of Geneva stated that his mail was stuffed with propaganda prepared in Harry Hopkins office, while a Michigan representative says that WPA employes are circulating petitions asking Congress to support the President's plan.

Tax committee conferes have agreed on a compromise tax bill to raise over five billion dollars. The new bill which does not levy taxes on government securities and retains only a face-saving shred of the President's excess profits tax, is thought by leaders of both parties to be far more favorable to business. It will have to be voted now in both the Senate and the House.
